

My Wife and I have been well served by Indiana's Telephone Privacy law. If the federal government wants to establish a national law of similar intent, the federal law must be held subserviant to a any state's act which provides greater protections (such as Indiana) to that state's citizen/consumers.